Constellation Outdoor Table

The Constellation Table designed by Chris Adamick is the result of thoughtful response, not reaction to a changed office landscape — a design that will be just as relevant in years to come as it is now. This modular table makes gathering feel connected and safe, encouraging behavior through form by rethinking its function. The elements of a traditional table are pulled apart allowing for an array of different surfaces or plant life to infill its connection points.

What we love about this table is that it solves for agency but also organically connects people allowing them to collaborate or share a cup of coffee in the great outdoors. Social cues and behaviors are gently guided by its lightweight industrial structure that takes the guesswork out of how we will be meeting now and in years to come.

Build Your Own

Constellation starts as a 3-top module and builds from there with the add-on module. Keep it simple as a small table to gather or create a long run to fill a terrace, rooftop or any outdoor space. Hooks are included with your table. 100% HDPE tops can weather the elements and contribute to this table's sustainable story. The sky is the limit!
